Caring for Colleagues

Approximately 1 out of 8 women will get breast cancer in her lifetime.

A mammogram is the single most important tool for early detection.

What is Caring for Colleagues?

Each and every day we struggle to find enough time to get everything done. Often we overlook the importance of taking time for ourselves, including annual health screenings. For women age 40 and over, a screening mammogram is one of the most important tools for early detection of breast cancer. The Breast Center at Sunrise has developed the Caring for Colleagues program designed to help organizations find time and encourage their employees to schedule a screening mammogram. Through Caring for Colleagues, organizations are able to reserve exclusive blocks of time for their employees and staff to book screening mammogram appointments. Light refreshments or a boxed lunch will be served free of charge. This is also a great opportunity to distribute your own important information to a captive audience. A minimum of 5 appointments must be booked at one time for this program. To learn more about the benefits of Caring for Colleagues, contact Linda Buckley at 702-784-1947.

If your organization is interested in participating in the Caring for Colleagues program, please complete the form on the following page.
